

Investigating and Reporting Online Hate Speech

The North West Migrant Forum, in collaboration with the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute (UNICRI), will be delivering a Pilot Training Course on Investigating and Reporting, Racism, Hate Crime and Hate Speech Online. This training is designed for a selected group of law enforcement authorities, legal professionals, members of statutory bodies, employers, members of Trade Unions, NGOs representatives and other experts in the field of integration and community-building projects based in Northern Ireland.

The pilot training course is based on the training manual

LIGHT ON: Investigating and Reporting Online Hate Speech

which has been prepared by UNICRI within the framework of the LIGHT ON project, supported and financed by the European Commission Directorate-General for Justice (JUST), under the Fundamental Rights and Citizenship Programme.

The training manual's contents, methodology and materials to be used during the pilot course has been discussed and reviewed during an ad hoc meeting by a group of high-level experts coming from five European countries (Finland, Hungary, Italy, Slovenia and UK/NI). Furthermore, the North West Migrants Forum played a crucial role in the final development of this manual, with all their inputs included in the final version of the manual and the pilot project being delivered in Northern Ireland.

If you are appalled by the recent news on the increase in racial attacks and hate crime in Northern Ireland or if you would like to know how to detect, report and deal with victims of racism, hate crime and hate speech online, this is the training for you. To sign up for the training please complete the attached form and return it via email to: nwmforum@gmail.com. Certificates will be issued to all attendees by one of the representatives of UNICRI who developed this training manual.
